Dad, I am officially done with the hell that mom has put us through. The last two years without you have been hell. Mom has hurt all three of us emotionally and physically through hitting us, slapping us, scratching us, yelling at us and torturing our minds. She has been unfair to all three of us all the time, lies to us all the time and tries to control us like we're some sort of pet. Many times she has left us crying alone, bloody and there have been times when I have had black and blue marks on my body from her, because she doesn't care about us. Also I am suffering in school because it's very hard to concentrate when she's always yelling, and she doesn't care to attempt to help me with homework, unlike when we were with you. My grades have sufficiently gone down from when I was in 6th grade(when you were helping me) to 7th grade and 8th grade(when you couldn't help us). I know that if we were with you, we would all be happier and my life all together would be better. I really want to be with you because I need to see you, Grandpa and Grandma, and our Cousins so we can all be happier in the future when we are with you. I love you so much, miss you a lot and really want to be with you, especially now. Love, Bryan
